Tucson Benedictine Sisters craft vestments for Rockhurst University centennial

CLYDE, Mo. – Celebrants of Rockhurst University's centennial are looking spiffy, thanks to the sewing skills of the Benedictine Sisters of Perpetual Adoration.

The Congregation's Tucson, Ariz., community, which is host to their liturgical vestments department, created 11 stoles and six chasubles for Rockhurst University staff to use during centennial events.

"We received the nicest note of gratitude from Father Kevin Cullen, SJ, vice president for mission and ministry at Rockhurst," Benedictine Sister Mary Jane Romero, OSB said. "He said they had recently held the Baccalaureate mass before graduation and the new vestments were beautiful and 'so elegant for the occasion.'"

Rockhurst University officials, including (center) Father Thomas Curran, president, are enjoying new vestments created by the Benedictine Sisters.
